"VARIOUS tricks will be used to drag us backwards. If we are deceived even slightly, all our hard work will be called into question," the CM said. Highlighting Periyar's advocacy for widow remarriage, Stalin recalled how a young Periyar arranged the remarriage of his 10-year-old niece who lost her 13-year-old husband just 16 days after their wedding. Underscoring DMK governments' initiatives in realising Periyar's ideals, Stalin noted that CN Annadurai introduced the self-respect marriage act, while M Karunanidhi implemented samathuvapuram housing schemes and a law enabling people of all castes to become temple priests. "All the achievements of Periyar were revolutions without weapons or bloodshed," he remarked. Oxford: Chief minister M K Stalin on Thursday unveiled a portrait of social reformer 'Periyar' E V Ramasamy at Oxford University's St Antony's College, and called upon all countries to come up with a policy to provide reservation for the oppressed and marginalised. At a conference marking centenary celebrations of the self-respect movement, Stalin wanted Periyar's ideology to go global.
"A hundred years ago the self-respect movement was started with a purpose — and that purpose is being gradually fulfilled," Stalin said. In India the rights of every section of society have been secured through the right to reservation. "All countries must provide such reservation policies to the oppressed and marginalised. In some countries it already exists as affirmative action. In many universities, it is there in the form of campus diversity," he said.
The lecture hall was packed to the hilt for the speech with academics, students and Tamil diaspora. Stalin said he was delighted that once again 'the light of Periyar's rationalism' was shining at Oxford, noting that on Sept 21, 1983, Oxford University had held a centenary celebration of Periyar, and K

The Chief Minister also attended the After the Assembly: Constituting India' exhibition at the SOAS Gallery in London. He inspected exhibits highlighting a participatory nature of India's constitutional development, and its relevance in contemporary society.
This exhibition, commemorating the 75th anniversary of the Indian Constitution, showcases India's constitutionalism as a continuous journey through archival documents, digital platforms, and contemporary artistic expressions.
Mr. Stalin also interacted with members of project #SecularCountryside whose works are being showcased at the exhibition under way till September 20.
